

Although many researches have been carried out to evaluate and study the accuracy of old maps, there is no clear methodology adopted and can be used to compare these maps with modern data. To enable such comparison, differences between sources that are the results of real changes and differences due to techniques used to produce maps should be considered. This must result in a method that objectively describes how to interpret and compare features on old maps with the same elements on modern maps.

Maps Matching

Maher El-Hallaq

Map Comparison Based on Template Image Matching

Maher El-Hallaq

Dr. Maher El-Hallaq has worked as Head of Civil Engineering Department at the Islamic University of Gaza since 2011. He is also a consultant of many local municipalities and private agencies in the Gaza Strip. His primary research and professional interests are in the areas of digital cartography, global positioning system and geomatics.

978-3-8383-5232-9

El-Hallaq

LAP LAMBERT
Academic Publishing